ABOUT ME

My name is Jennifer, and I am an experienced digital journalist who has covered breaking news, the developing world, women, technology, and political culture in New York, Montreal, Prague, Dublin, Boston, and Aarhus. I am profoundly interested in the new frontier of journalism, and have thus devoted myself to learning how to code, design, and build websites, hoping to combine my passion for on-the-ground reporting with the tremendous power of technology. I am seeking a journalism-related position in London, where I plan on living indefinitely after completing my Master's degree.
